On a motion by Mr. Porteous, supported by Mr. Nugent, THE BOARD VOTED to adopt the tribute.

Andrew Schepers, Student Liaison to the Board of Trustees, presented a Resolution from the Associated Students of Michigan State University and the Residence Halls Association commending President M. Peter McPherson for his loyalty and commitment to undergraduate education and to the Spartan community.

Jon Sticklen, Faculty Liaison to the Board of Trustees, presented to President McPherson a statement of appreciation and thanks for his service from the academic governance system.

President McPherson said that this is a moment that is both sad and exciting. He commented on how the University administration had struggled and achieved so much together. President McPherson thanked everyone for the kind words presented today, but noted that the accomplishments referenced in the resolution were made possible through the efforts of many people. President McPherson said he is proud of his 11 years of service and said that the best years are still ahead for the University. He encouraged the administration continue to demand the best of the University and never to be satisfied with what has been achieved.

President McPherson noted that, looking back through its history, MSU has met challenges by approaching them differently than other institutions. By taking calculated risks, MSU has achieved a great deal.

President McPherson said he would miss the struggles and challenges that he has faced, but he would miss the people he has worked with even more. President McPherson thanked the students and faculty for their resolutions and kindnesses.

4. President's Report:

President McPherson announced that Fall commencement would begin at 7:00 that evening with the advanced-degree ceremony. The South African Ambassador to the United States, Barbara Masekela, would be the commencement speaker. In the 1970s, Michigan State University divested its investments in South Africa. That action established a relationship with South Africa that has been very special. Myron Magen, founding dean of MSU's College of Osteopathic Medicine, will receive an honorary degree.

Undergraduate commencement speakers will be U.S. Senator Carl Levin and Senator Dan DeGrow. President McPherson remarked that during his tenure as President, Senator Levin responded every time he asked him for help. Senator DeGrow has been a good friend and great help to MSU in advocating for appropriations to the University.

President McPherson said that three MSU professors were recently honored when they were selected as fellows of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers. Only a handful of scientists achieve this prestigious honor. The MSU recipients were Edward Rothwell and Fang Peng from the Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering and Stanley Schriber of physics and astronomy and the National Superconducting Cyclotron Laboratory.

President McPherson announced that Bhooma Aravamuthan, an MSU student from Kalamazoo, has received a Marshall Scholarship, totaling nearly $60,000. She is a major in biochemistry and physiology and will graduate in May. She plans to pursue both a Ph.D. and medical degree and become a physician/scientist.

President McPherson noted that MSU scientists were part of a team that sequenced the genome of a chicken. This has far reaching implications for animal scientists, but could also impact a number of human health issues, as both chickens and humans can be affected by the same viruses, bacteria and parasites. Jerry Dodgson, a professor of microbiology and molecular genetics was the MSU member on this international research team. The work was published in the well-respected British science journal, "Nature."

Mr. McPherson reported that MSU is continuing its outreach to Michigan leaders. Last week 28 of 40 newly elected state legislators took part in a three-day Legislative Leadership program. It is a unique program that is offered by MSU's Institute for Public Policy and Social Research and MSU Extension.

President McPherson announced that MSU's student-run radio station, WDBM-FM, also known as "The Impact," has become the first college station in the country to broadcast digitally in high-definition radio. This technology is so new that only about 200 of the country's 13,000 radio stations use it.

5. Public Participation on Items Germane to the Agenda

There was no public participation on items germane to the Agenda.

6. Personnel Actions

- A. Fisher, Ronald, AN – Director, Honors College, Professor, Department of Economics, to change title to Dean, Honors College, effective January 1, 2005.

On a motion by Mr. Porteous, supported by Mr. Romney, THE BOARD VOTED to approve the recommendations.

Dr. Simon said that one of the objectives of the Honors College was to strengthen it and return it to the prominence it had formerly enjoyed. Dr. Fisher has accomplished that. Additionally, the title, “Dean of Honors College,” is common among institutions of similar size and caliber to MSU. The change will reflect the importance of this academic activity within the University, for both recruitment and retention of students. The change in title was reviewed and endorsed by the academic governance system.

Connie Currier, Chair of the Advisory Committee, said the advisory committee was consulted, and Jeff Riedinger’s appointment to Acting Dean was unanimously approved. John Hudzik, Dean of International Studies and Programs and Acting Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs Designate, said he has been extraordinarily fortunate to have had Jeff Riedinger as Associate Dean in International Studies and Programs, and MSU is very fortunate to have him in the role of Acting Dean.

Trustee Cook said she was delighted to see the change in title for Dr. Fisher because he has strengthened the Honors College and has strengthened the spirit of the college. Ms. Cook said she recently had conversations with Dr. Fisher and some of the students of the Honors College. The students spoke of their loyalty to the College. It mirrored the spirit that is seen in the two residential colleges at MSU.

Ms. Cook pointed out that Dr. Fisher had spoken many times about the Honors College in appearances across the country and has showcased students of the Honors College.

7. Gift, Grant and Contract Report

Vice President Gray presented the Gift, Grant and Contract Report for the period of September 23, 2004, through November 22, 2004. The report is a compilation of 324 Gifts, Grants and Contracts, 49 Consignment/Non-Cash Gifts and one Consignment/Non-Cash Loan, with a total value of $48,217,016.06.

10. Chairman's Report

Trustee Porteous, on behalf of the entire Board of Trustees and the University community, extended condolences to Trustee Nugent on the passing of his father.

Trustee Porteous said he had had the pleasure of attending the Goldman Sachs Foundation banquet in Washington, D.C., where several national awards were presented to schools that had exceptional programs in international education. There were categories for universities, high schools and elementary schools. Mr. Porteous asked Dean Carole Ames to introduce members of her team and to describe the program for which they were recognized. Dean Ames presented Chairman Porteous with the certificate entitled, "Goldman Sachs Foundation Prize for Excellence in International Education." Dr. Ames observed that this was one of the most prestigious awards for international education in the United States. It recognized MSU's leadership in international education and the University's work with pre-service teachers and outreach programming to K-12 schools. The award results from a ten-year partnership between the College of Education and the area study centers at MSU and also with K-12 districts. This award was earned because of the dedication and hard work of individuals who provided a range of leadership.

Dean Ames recognized John Metzler for his leadership in the studies center. Dr. Metzler directs outreach programming and has developed online resources for in-service teachers and schools to teach about Africa, Latin America and Asia, as well as study abroad trips for K-12 teachers. Dr. Ames then recognized Sally McClintock for her leadership in a professional development project that links MSU international students to K-12 teachers. The program is remarkable because of the enduring relationship that continues and benefits both countries, even after students leave MSU. Lastly, Dean Ames recognized John Schville for his leadership in internationalizing the curriculum for K-12 pre-service and study abroad programs for students in Australia and South Africa.

Chairman Porteous presented a "Michigan State University Board of Trustees Tribute Honoring Randall L. Pittman," dated December 10, 2004. (Attachment D)

On a motion by Mr. Porteous, supported by Mr. Nugent, the BOARD VOTED to adopt the Tribute.

Mr. Porteous referred to Trustee Pittman as an elite player who made all the members of the Board of Trustees better.

Jon Sticklen introduced Michael Moch, a member of the Facility Liaison Committee to the Board of Trustees. Professor Moch, on behalf of the Faculty Liaisons, presented Randall Pittman with a letter of appreciation.
