ACADEMIC COSTUME

In 1895, the Intercollegiate Commission, a group of leading American educators, introduced an academic costume code which by design of gowns and hoods would indicate the various degrees, and which by colors would identify the various faculties.

Three types of gowns are indicated by the code. Those worn by the bachelors have long, pointed sleeves. Those worn by masters have long, closed sleeves with the arc of a circle near the bottom. Doctor's gowns are faced with velvet. The sleeves are full, round, and open with three bars of velvet on each sleeve. The velvet facing of the bars on the sleeves may be black or the same color as the binding of the hood.

Hoods are made of material identical with the gown and are lined in the official academic color of the institution conferring the degree (e.g., green and white for MSU; burnt orange and white for the University of Texas; blue and gold for UCLA). If the institution has more than one color, the chevron is used to introduce the second color. Colored velvet or velveteen binds the hoods and indicates the department or faculty to which the degree pertains.

The color of the velvet of the hood is distinctive of the subject to which the degree pertains. For example, the trimming for the degree of Master of Science in Agriculture should be maize, representing agriculture, rather than golden yellow, representing science. Generally, the code for the velvet of the hood is the same as listed below for tassels.

At Michigan State University, it is customary to identify the candidates graduating from the different departments of study by tassels of the official department color as established by the Intercollegiate Code

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY

Michigan State University, a leading land-grant university and the first agricultural college in America, strives for excellence in providing students a broad curricula of liberal and practical education. MSU also serves people of the state, nation and world through its numerous research, extension, and international programs.

Now in its 135th year, Michigan State University has grown from three buildings and six faculty members to one of the largest universities in the nation. It has more than 3,000 faculty/staff engaged in teaching, research, and public service; more than 400 campus buildings; and more than 5,200 acres of land, of which some 2,100 acres are in existing or planned campus development. More than 42,000 students now attend the university at East Lansing, of which some 85 percent are from Michigan.

Michigan State University is committed to diversity and multiculturalism in its student body, in its faculty, in its staff, and in its curriculum and outreach programs. Our student body hails from every county in the State of Michigan, every state in the nation, and 107 foreign nations. Minority students comprise 12.1 percent of the campus population, and includes the largest number of African American students among all Big Ten schools.

Founded in 1855 to educate youth for the major occupation of that day—farming—MSU has broadened its offerings to meet the educational needs of today. The university now has a Graduate School and 14 colleges—Agriculture and Natural Resources, Arts and Letters, Business, Communication Arts and Sciences, Education, Engineering, Human Ecology, Human Medicine, James Madison, Natural Science, Nursing, Osteopathic Medicine, Social Science, and Veterinary Medicine.

At the center of all major universities is a cluster of disciplines that constitute the liberal arts and sciences. At MSU, this center consists of three colleges—Arts and Letters, Natural Science, and Social Science. Providing outstanding undergraduate and graduate degree programs with majors in traditional disciplines, these colleges also have special programs that enable students to obtain a broad multidisciplinary education. In addition, in collaboration with the College of Education, the three colleges prepare students to become teachers in the secondary schools of Michigan and the nation. These colleges touch the lives of all undergraduate students at MSU by providing the general education that constitutes approximately one-quarter of the undergraduate program. The Honors College, which enables superior undergraduate students to waive normal graduation requirements and undertake individual programs, attracts many of the nation's finest young scholars. MSU is proud of its record in producing Rhodes Scholars, a total of thirteen (ten since 1971-72); the university also has provided six Marshall Scholarship winners: and 11 Churchill Scholarships. These British scholarships are two of the most distinguished and prestigious academic awards that an American student can receive. Michigan State University also is a prominent sponsor of National Merit Scholars.

MSU adds to the store of knowledge with a wide array of outstanding research activities that are supported by a multimillion dollar sponsor-funding program. Some major facilities include the Pesticide Research Laboratory, operated with the U.S. Department of energy as a national plant biology center; and the MSU/W. K. Kellogg Biological Station, which has been designated as a National Research Preserve. In collaboration with both the National Science Foundation and the U.S. Department of energy, the National Superconducting Cyclotron Laboratory at MSU is examining the nuclei of the heaviest of elements.

Benefits of the university are brought to the public by the Agricultural Experiment Station, University Outreach, and the Cooperative Extension Service. Their programs provide technical information and formal course work for many Michigan citizens, The Kellogg Center for Continuing Education, one of the finest conference centers in the nation, annually hosts nearly 30,000 adults who come to the campus for some 600 conferences and other educational meetings.

The university's land-grant concept of service is international. Supported by grants from the federal government and private foundations, MSU maintains research and educational assistance projects on a worldwide basis. International projects have given many faculty members overseas experience, adding a new dimension to their teaching.

Michigan State University is a member of the Association of American Universities, National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, American Council on Education, American Council of Learned Societies, International Association of Universities, Association of Graduate Schools, Council of Graduate Schools, and the Committee on Institutional Cooperation.

HONORARY DEGREE

WALTER E. MASSEY

Walter E. Massey, you are living, exemplary proof that a youth can overcome a disadvantaged beginning and rise to one of the highest positions in American science.

You began your academic life in a segregated school in Hattiesburg, Mississippi. At age 16, when you had completed the tenth grade, a Ford Foundation Early Admission Scholarship enabled you to enter Morehouse College. You had never heard of physics and had never taken a course in chemistry, trigonometry, or advanced algebra. After two weeks at Morehouse, you might have gone home but your mother would not allow it. So you persevered. You went on to earn a bachelor of science degree in physics and mathematics from Morehouse in 1958. Later, you enrolled at Washington University and earned a doctor of philosophy degree in physics in 1966.

In the worlds of physics and academe, your rise was meteoric. You started in 1966 as a postdoctoral fellow at Argonne National Laboratory. Two years later, you became a staff physicist and then an assistant professor of physics at the University of Illinois. Brown University appointed you as an associate professor of physics in 1970 and, by 1975, you were a full professor and dean of the college.

As a researcher, you delved deeply into the many-body theories of quantum liquids and solids. As a teacher and administrator, you devoted much of your energy and time to introducing disadvantaged youths to the world of science through an innovative program that involved undergraduates in mentoring and tutoring in inner-city classrooms.

In 1979, you returned to the Midwest as director of Argonne and professor of physics at the University of Chicago. After only three years at Argonne, Science magazine reported that Argonne had "made a comeback" and that the Department of Energy now had "greatly increased confidence" in it. In 1982, the University of Chicago made you vice president for research and in 1984, you relinquished the directorship of Argonne and assumed the joint position of vice president of the University of Chicago for research and for Argonne.

In these roles, you attracted much national attention and served actively in high-level positions with a number of scientific organization. In 1981, you were elected to the Board of Directors of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and in 1988-89 you served as that organization's president. You were also active in many civic roles in Chicago.

Appointed by President George Bush and confirmed by the U.S. Senate, you began your current six-year term as director of the National Science Foundation on March 4, 1991. In this capacity, your knowledge as a scientist, your skills as a mediator and administrator, and your compassion as a human being continue to serve you well.

These qualities have already earned you numerous awards and honorary degrees. Michigan State University is pleased to officially pay its respect by bestowing on you the honorary degree of doctor of science.

HONORARY DEGREE

FRANK PRESS

Frank Press, geophysicist, educator, researcher, writer, advisor to presidents, and articulate spokesperson for science, you have plumbed the depths of the earth and helped make it a better place for science to flourish for the benefit of humanity.

You have been elected to the National Academies of the United States, France, the United Kingdom, and the former Soviet Union, and have been honored with high awards from several scientific societies. In annual surveys by U.S. News and World Report, you have been named the most influential American scientist. A mountain near the South Pole bears your name.

Born in Brooklyn, you received the bachelor of science degree from City College of New York in 1944 and then attended Columbia University where you earned the master of arts degree in 1946 and the doctor of philosophy degree in geophysics in 1949. You continued at Columbia as a member of the faculty until 1955. You then moved to California Institute of Technology as a professor of geophysics and, later, as director of the seismology laboratory. In 1965, you returned to the East Coast as head of the Department of Geology and Geophysics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Under your leadership, the department thrived and expanded and was renamed the Department of Earth and Planetary Sciences.

In 1977, President Jimmy Carter named you as his science advisor and director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy. You returned to MIT in 1981 with the special title of institute professor until your election later that year as president of the National Academy of Sciences. In 1987, you were re-elected to a second six-year term.

As a researcher, you achieved international stature for your work on the ocean floors, the earth's crust, and the deep interior of the earth as well as for major contributions in lunar and planetary sciences. You have 160 scientific papers to your credit and are co-author of Earth, an introductory textbook used at MSU and many other universities.

As a presidential advisor and as president of the National Academy of Sciences, you serve as a representative of science and of scientists throughout the United States. You have helped to increase our nation's commitment to basic research, to spur industrial innovation, to enhance international scientific collaboration, and to encourage joint research among universities, government, and industry.

For your extraordinary contributions to scientific knowledge and for your dedicated service to the world of science, Michigan State University hereby confers on you the honorary degree of doctor of science.

1992 DISTINGUISHED ALUMNI AWARD

ERNEST G. GREEN

Nine black children -- all good students ranging in age from 15 to 17 -- were selected by the NAACP in 1957 to integrate Central High School in Little Rock, Arkansas after the U.S. Supreme Court's 1954 decision found school segregation to be unconstitutional. Then-governor Orval Faubus told the National Guard to keep the black students out, but President Dwight Eisenhower ordered the 101st Airborne Division to escort them into class, the first time federal troops had been used to enforce desegregation. Ernest G. Green, one of the "Little Rock Nine," was the first black graduate of Central High School, and has earned two subsequent degrees from Michigan State University: the Bachelor of Arts from the College of Social Science and a Master of Science in Sociology.

Today, Ernest Green is Senior Vice President of Shearson Lehman Hutton, Inc., a subsidiary of American Express Company which offers a comprehensive range of investment products and services. Prior to this position, he served as President of Ernest Green and Associates, Inc., a firm which he founded in 1981. A minority-owned consulting firm headquartered in Washington, D.C., the company's services range from the provision of marketing assistance, financial management and economic forecasting to the conduct of legislative impact analyses. From 1977 through 1981, Mr. Green held the post of Assistant Secretary of Labor for Employment and Training.

Ernest Green has served on the Board of Directors of the NAACP and the Winthrop Rockefeller Foundation, is presently serving on the Board of Trustees of the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation and the Michigan State University College of Social Science Board of Visitors.

ARNOLD F. HENTSCHL

Arnold Hentschl received two degrees from the Michigan State University College of Veterinary Medicine: a B.S. degree in Veterinary Science and a Doctorate of Veterinary Medicine in 1955. Following graduation, he established a primary food animal mixed practice in Harbor Beach, Michigan, that later became a professional corporation -- Harbor Beach Veterinary Services, P.C.

As he worked to establish this successful business in Harbor Springs, Hentschl also became a respected leader in organized veterinary medicine at the state and national levels. He rose through many offices in these organizations to become the chairperson of the executive board of the American Veterinary Medical Association, the most influential position in that organization.

In a separate professional activity, he has become a national spokesperson for those veterinarians across the country who are specifically concerned with the care of food producing animals. He is consultant to feedyards throughout the state, represented national and Michigan livestock producers at FDA hearings on tetracycline and penicillin levels in animal feeds at Raleigh, North Carolina and represented the Michigan Cattlemen's Association in negotiations with the Canadian government regarding the export of Michigan beef during the PBB crisis.

1992 DISTINGUISHED ALUMNI AWARD

JUDITH LANIER

The award of the 1991 McGraw Prize to Judith Lanier aptly recognized a distinguished career in American Education.

Since receiving her doctorate in curriculum research from MSU in 1968, Lanier has been a leader in moving the College of Education in new directions: as Director of the School of Teacher Education, as co-founder of the nationally-acclaimed Institute for Research on Teaching and, since 1980, as Dean of the College.

As Acting Assistant Provost for Lifelong Education, Lanier reinvigorated MSU's commitment to lifelong learning by restructuring Lifelong Education and serving as primary author of the successful 10.2 million dollar grant proposal to the Kellogg Foundation -- the largest single grant from a private foundation ever received by the University.

Her recognition of the need to reform the education of teachers was instrumental in the founding of the Holmes Group which, now headquartered at MSU, has successfully promoted curricula which emphasize strong disciplinary preparation integrated with methodology and theory. Lanier currently serves as Executive Director of the Michigan Partnership for a New Education, which has pledged an unprecedented 48 million dollars from public, private, and professional sectors to support educational innovation.

A University Distinguished Professor, Judith Lanier has been designated one of 70 leaders in Teacher Education by the National Association of Teacher Educators and recently was nominated to the National Academy of Education.

M.S.U., We love thy shadows
When twilight silence falls,
Flushing deep and softly paling
O'er ivy-covered halls.
Beneath the pines we'll gather
To give our faith so true,
Sing our love for Alma Mater
And thy praises, M.S.U.
