YOUNG MAN GOES TO COLLEGE

MICHIGAN STATE COLLEGE

Korney Named Chairman As Fund Starts 4th Year

John J. Korney, '31, has joined a "going concern."

He was recently appointed Board chairman of the Michigan State College Fund for the 1953 year.

Donate $28,459.98

Korney becomes chairman at a time when alumni have contributed more to the Fund than ever before. This year, through the annual Alumni Roll Call, M.S.C. grads donated $28,459.98.

Korney

This is about $6,000 more than the amount contributed in 1951, and approximately $5,600 more than was given in 1950, the first year of the Roll Call.

Korney succeeds Lewis A. Smith, '14, as chairman. Connected with the Commonwealth Bank of Detroit, he is past president of the Detroit chapter of the American Institute of Banking, and past secretary of the Michigan Junior Chamber of Commerce. He is also a graduate of the University of Detroit College of Law.

Finance Research, Scholarships

Presently, the M.S.C. Fund is sponsoring 15 tuition scholarships, eight research fellowships and two research professorships. Alumni Roll Call contributions also are used to finance the annual $500 Distinguished Teacher Award.

Leading M.S.C. classes in each decade, based on the per cent of the class contributing, are the Patriarchs (Class of 1902 and before), and the classes of 1912, 1922, 1930 and 1942.

Going Up!

The Spartan alumni body hit a new record last month. It passed the centennial mark in the number of clubs now operating all over the world. The 100th club held its first meeting in the Mayflower Hotel, Seattle, Wash., on Dec. 7.

KEEPING POSTED: Arnold W. Spaan, '49, checks up on the job picture with Jeanne Malone, of the M.S.C. Placement Bureau. Spaan, who is receiving cards which will register him with the Bureau, is taking advantage of another of many campus services available to alumni. Spaan, who majored in sociology at Michigan State, resides in Oglebay Park, Wheeling, W. Va.

Alumnus in Demand; 6,000 Jobs Are Listed with Placement Bureau

During the past year approximately 6,000 positions have been listed with the Michigan State College Placement Bureau for experienced alumni in all fields of business, industry and education.

Acute Shortage

The present shortage of college-trained people is getting worse and the annual demands far exceed the output of our colleges, according to John F. Schlueter, Bureau director. Generally, employers are seeking graduates for positions requiring varying degrees of experience, with a particular need for technicians.

Seek Returning G.I.s

Numerous firms have also expressed an interest in contacting returning service men and women to supplement openings in key positions created by the emergency. Service men will be extended an opportunity to become members of training programs, emphasizing development in the management area.

Service to Graduates

Regardless of academic background, graduates returning from the armed services will have an opportunity for employment in areas other than their college majors.

To encourage this program, Schlueter suggests to G.I.'s anticipating discharge, and who are seriously thinking of taking advantage of their training and experience, to contact the Placement Bureau for further information.

Keep Bureau Informed

Inform the Placement Bureau of your job and geographical preference, in addition to other information which would help qualify you for these opportunities. This information will help the Bureau in notifying you of job opportunities referred to the campus by firms interested in college graduates.

College TV Station Given Funds for Transmitter

A grant of $100,000 from the Ford Fund for Adult Education has been given to Michigan State College for further development of its television program.

Coming about a month after the FCC authorized the college to install a TV antenna and transmitter on ultra-high frequency channel 60, the money will go toward the purchase of a transmitter, according to Dr. Armand L. Hunter, director of the television development.

Purchase Within Six Months

It is expected the transmitter will be purchased within six months. Dr. Hunter points out that this is the second major grant from private sources to be used for the purchase of TV equipment within the past year. A gift of $21,000 from the Fred P. Warren Foundation of Three Oaks, Mich., was used to purchase a mobile unit for telecasting outside the college's central video studio.

Construct Tower in Okemos

The college's TV station is expected to be in full operation by the fall of 1953 if the necessary equipment—particularly the transmitter and antenna—are available for purchase. A 1,000-foot tower will be constructed east of the campus in Okemos to carry the college's educational programs over a radius of 34 to 65 miles.

Hunter says the transmitter and tower are the only major items of equipment needed to put the station "on the air." The college has been operating its own fully-equipped, closed circuit television network on the campus for two years.

"Sound Investment"

Says Hunter, "the grant is gratifying recognition of the tremendous educational role which television will play in the years ahead, particularly with respect to adult education. It is one of the soundest investments which could be made for the public good."

RECORD Mailing Lists Now Cover 57 Nations

A check over the mailing lists of the Alumni RECORD reveals some interesting information.

At present, the RECORD is being mailed to 40,168 persons. Of these 39,568 live in the United States while 600 reside in foreign lands.

Besides the Continental United States, the RECORD is mailed to Africa, Asia, Australia, Canada, Central America, Europe, Mexico, Pacific Islands, Hawaii, the Philippines, South America and the West Indies. In all the RECORD is sent to 57 countries.

Deans Miller, Anthony Will Begin One-Year Retirement Leaves July 1

Three names familiar to thousands of former Spartan students will retire from the college faculty at the end of the current college year.

Stiles Replaces Hunt

They are Dr. Ernest L. Anthony, dean of Agriculture; Dr. Lorin G. Miller, dean of Engineering; and Dr. Harrison R. Hunt, head of the Department of Zoology.

Although no successors have been named for Deans Anthony and Miller, Dr. Karl A. Stiles, professor of zoology at M.S.C. since 1945, has been appointed to succeed Dr. Hunt.

Dr. Anthony's retirement ends a 40-year educational career of teaching and administration at Pennsylvania State College, West Virginia University and M.S.C. Coming to Michigan State in 1928, he holds a large share of credit for the international reputation now enjoyed by the college's agricultural programs.

Miller Joined Staff in 1929

Dean Miller left a post as dean of Engineering at the University of Wisconsin to come to M.S.C. in 1929. He became head of the mechanical engineering department in 1932 and was elevated to dean in 1949.

Stiles

He is an authority in the field of heating and ventilating engineering.

Both Dean Anthony and Dean Miller hold honorary doctoral degrees from the University of Missouri and Lawrence Institute of Technology, respectively.

Dr. Hunt came to the college as head of the zoology department in 1923. Since that time the number of students in this department has increased tenfold. He enjoys a national reputation for research work on the effect of heredity on dental caries in rats. Author of two books and numerous articles in the field, he received his Ph.D. degree from Harvard University.

Prof. Stiles also is well known for his work in the biological science field, having headed the biology department and the division of natural sciences at Coe College, Iowa before coming to M.S.C.

Top Honors Awarded Two College Staffers

Two outstanding Michigan Agricultural agents received national recognition in December. They are Burton C. Mellenkamp, '22, Isabella county agricultural agent, and Orville F. Walker, Kalkaska and Crawford county agent.

Both received Distinguished Service Awards in honor of their service to Michigan people through the Michigan Cooperative Extension Service.

Walker's career began in 1936 when he joined the extension service as district 4-H Club agent in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Emmet counties. His work there tripled 4-H enrollment in two years. Later he had charge of all Upper Peninsula 4-H Club programs, and went to his present post in 1948.

Mellenkamp started extension work in 1924 as Ag. agent in Charlevoix county where he organized a county-wide dairy program. His efforts stimulated the establishment of a dairy cooperative in East Jordan.

The story of his entrance into college life, his hopes and ambitions, are told in text and pictures on pages 8 and 9. Spartan Campus Readied For '53 Farmers' Week

"Farmers' Week has come to stay."

That was a prediction of the editor of The Michigan Farmer in 1914 after 900 farmers and wives attended the first Farmers' Week program at Michigan Agricultural College.

Accurate Prediction

No editor ever made a more accurate prediction. For throughout the 39 years since that blustery March week, rural people of Michigan have considered Farmers' Week the number one winter educational event for agriculture.

For two years immediately following World War II, when the campus was over-crowded with students in M.S.C.'s limited facilities, no Farmers' Week was held. But since 1948 the event has grown in size and attendance.

An estimated 40,000 or more attended the 1952 event and those making plans for the 1953 show expect this many or more if weather is favorable. In 1914 all meetings were held in Ag. Hall, one of the newer buildings on the campus. Today it takes many buildings, all the auditoriums, and even the concourse beneath Macklin Field Stadium to handle exhibits, demonstrations and meetings.

Eisenhower, Philbrick to Speak

Headline speakers for the 1953 Farmers' Week, January 26 to 31, include Pres. Milton Eisenhower of Pennsylvania State College and Herbert Philbrick, noted F.B.I. agent who exposed 11 Communists in New York. Michigan State College students will take part in some of the general sessions programs.

Farmers' Week has become more than a program of the Cooperative Extension Service—it's extended even beyond the Schools of Agriculture and Home Economics. Many departments at Michigan State aid materially in making Michigan State's Farmers' Week probably the largest of the many held at Land-Grant Colleges.

Over 35 Farm Groups to Attend

Educational meetings, exhibits and demonstrations are plentiful; livestock contests hold great interest; more than 35 state associations of farm organizations hold annual meetings during the week.

Programs giving complete information are available from county agricultural agents or from the School of Agriculture at Michigan State College.

TREE MOVERS: Approximately 100 people attending the second annual Landscape Gardeners Conference held at Kellogg Center for Continuing Education last month watched the modern method of transplanting a good sized tree. This one, a sugar maple, measured 31 feet from top to base.

MSC Staff Researchers Seeking Answers to Key Political Questions

During the past few months Americans have lost a lot of sleep impatiently awaiting the outcome of political conventions and elections.

What they saw and heard is history, but the why and how of the history and its implications for the future are questions that pollsters, historians and political experts will be digging into for years.

Among these experts are 30 faculty members working with the M.S.C. Governmental Research Bureau. Results of some of the projects this group is conducting should prove illuminating.

Myth in Our Midst

"One of the greatest myths of our time is that people outside a large metropolitan area think that somehow such an area is united politically," says Dr. Edward W. Weidner, Bureau director. "That big city people think and vote distinctively from the rest of the state, we seriously doubt."

Here are some other questions about voting in metropolitan areas Bureau members are posing: Is the "out-state" person who moves to the big city distinctive in his voting behavior? What, politically, happens to the person who moves from another state to the city?

Nearing completion are two other major projects. The first is a study of senatorial elections in Wisconsin and Connecticut. Another that is attracting wide interest is a study of atrocity propa-

MSC Given $10,000 To Continue Driver Course

Michigan State has received a second check for $10,000 from the Michigan Inter-Industry Highway Safety Committee to continue its driver education program for adults and high school students.

To date the program, under the direction of Prof. Leslie R. Silvernale, aims at reaching 350 Michigan high schools offering driver training courses; a credit course has been instituted at M.S.C. to train education students, driving teachers and other adults; and on-campus workshops are held through the year to study driver education problems.

The work is part of the college's development of an over-all safety education program, features of which are the truck driver and school bus driver training courses which have been operated at the Kellogg Center for Continuing Education for the past year.

The gift was received by President John A. Hannah from James Mason, chairman of the safety committee.

ganda in the Korean War. Already the State Department has offered to publish these findings, and a radio broadcast on the subject over WKAR has been used by the Voice of America.

Begin Publishing

Though comparatively new to the campus, the Bureau has begun publishing. Soon reports will be available on the recent Democratic and Republican national conventions, "Michigan and World Trade," and state and local finances in Michigan.

Dr. Weidner says the scope of the Bureau's job is threefold. The first program is called basic research in political behavior, which is important because of the lack of knowledge of how people behave politically and what their political problems are.

Secondly, the Bureau is beginning a program of citizenship education; and third, it provides technical assistance to state and local government officials.

"Busy" might be an apt word in describing Bureau staffers these days, and their "busyness" is resulting in an important service to American people.

Press Box Report on SPARTAN SPORTS

By FRED STABLEY and

The Champs

Like ancient warriors after successful battle, players and coaches of Michigan State's all-victorious 1952 football team are happily counting their spoils.

First in importance, of course, was the team's rating of No. 1 in the nation on both the Associated Press and United Press polls. It was the first time a Spartan team had attained the pinnacle and was a highly fitting climax to a campaign of nine straight victories. In the process, State ran its victory string to 24 in a row, longest current among major football powers.

The O'Donnell Trophy, emblematic of the national football championship, will be presented to State at the annual banquet of the Detroit Times Quarterbacks Club in Detroit Feb. 12.

Just a step behind in importance was the designation by the Scripps-Howard newspapers through a poll of college football coaches of Head Coach Biggie Munn as Coach of the Year. That, too, marks the first time a State coach has been so honored.

Four players were named to first string All-American teams. Nine received and accepted bowl bids. Various other individual honors were won.

The All-Americans are linebacker Dick Tamburo, guard Frank Kush, halfback Don McAuliffe and safety Jim Ellis. Almost a dozen other Spartans received second or third-team and honorable mention ratings.

John Wilson, winner of a Rhodes scholarship shortly after the season's end, was named winner of the Ross Trophy given annually to the team member who makes the best contributions to the school both athletically and scholastically.

Line Coach Duffy Daugherty came in for special honors through his designation as winner of the Master's Trophy, given annually at a Lansing banquet sponsored by the Masonic Blue Lodges to the athletic staff member deemed to have made the finest contribution to the school during the year.

Munn also was designated Coach of the Year by the Detroit Times and will be so honored at the Times banquet. Tamburo is to be cited as lineman of the year at the same affair.

The Touchdown Club, of Washington, D. C., had an M.S.C. field day, naming Munn as coach of the year; McAuliffe college back of the year; former quarterback Al Dorow the service game's back of the year and former halfback Lynn Chadnois the pro back of the year.

Clean Sweep

Michigan State's cross country team ranks as the best in the nation as a result of the 14th Annual NCAA run held at East Lansing in the last week of November. In addition, the Spartan runners presented trophies to Coach Karl Schlademan signifying first places in the Western Conference and IC4A championship runs.

In the NCAA meet, the Spartans scored 65 points to win the team title. Team captain James Kepford was the first Spartan to score, finishing third.

With their winning effort in the Western Conference meet, the harriers rate as the first Michigan State team to win two straight league crowns. Kepford led the way, finishing second to Iowa's Rich Ferguson. State's 28 point total in this meet was the second lowest ever recorded.

On New York's Van Cortlandt Park course, the Spartans easily won their seventh IC4A title with 46 points compared to second place Army with 93.

Winter Sports

The winning spirit caught on, and Michigan State's other varsity teams of the fall term fell right in line by compiling impressive records through the Christmas recess.

Pete Newell's basketball team entered the Spartan Basketball classic with a 62-51 win over Marquette on the record books and although losing to UCLA, 60-55, bounced back with a startling upset over highly rated Kansas State, 80-63. In other classic games, Kansas State dumped Notre Dame 80-64 and Notre Dame beat UCLA, 68-60.

The hockey squad of Coach Amo Besone, now officially a member of the Mid-West Collegiate Hockey league, defeated the St. Lawrence University squad of New York, 3-2, then fought to a 6-6 deadlock with Toronto University, three-time Canadian collegiate champs.

Dohoney

WINNERS: These four members of "Biggie" Munn's 1952 national championship team, receive congratulations from their mentor at the annual team banquet. Left to right are Dick Tamburo, who won the coveted Governor of Michigan medal; Jim Ellis, who had three touchdowns cancelled because the ref said he stepped out of bounds, received a special "sideline marker" award; Doug Weaver, the Oil Can Award for contributing spirit and humor to the squad; and Captain Don McAuliffe, named All-American by Collier's Magazine. Honors also went to end Don Dohoney who was elected captain of the 1953 Spartan Team (see picture above).

AFFAIRS OF STATE

By DON ELLIS, '53

Student Affairs

Once again Michigan State College has led its students through four years of college activities to commencement.

At graduation ceremonies last month, the fall class of 1952—some 515 strong—received their bachelor's and advanced degrees. Included in this total were 96 master's degrees and 40 doctorates.

Graduates heard Dr. John S. Everton, president of Kalamazoo College, deliver the commencement address. Dr. Everton received his Ph.D. degree from Yale University and has been president of Kalamazoo College since 1949.

An insight into the homes of the most misunderstood country in the world—the United States—was given to more than 200 students from foreign countries over the Christmas holidays at Michigan State College.

Students representing nearly all of 123 foreign countries, which have a combined total of 30,000 students in the United States, accepted invitations to attend the "Christmas Adventure in World Understanding" at the Kellogg Center.

The program gave the visitors a first-hand look into the American home, farm, business, industry, and a typical land-grant college. The young men and women also received a broad and accurate impression of the opinions and attitudes of the people of America.

To help finance the trips, which brought students from colleges in the four corners of the country, a number of $50 scholarships were given. Most of the money was donated by private citizens, service organizations, and industrial firms.

All the students who attended the meeting were dinner guests for one evening in a Lansing home, and they spent one night in rural homes in four Central Michigan counties.

The group traveled to Detroit to see industrial plants and meet leaders of labor and industry. A similar opportunity was given them in Lansing, where they met not only the large, but also the small business and industrial operators. The students also had interviews and seminars with nationally-known personalities.

High point of the "Adventure" was the celebration of a typical American Christmas at the Kellogg Center.

The 1952 class has donated $3,000 to the Alumni Memorial Chapel. Ward Ouradnik, '53, made the presentation to Starr Keesler, alumni relations director and class advisor.

Keesler said a portion of the gift would be used for two stained-glass windows with a "Class of 1952" inscription. Folding chairs for the chapel and records for the Union building music room, will also be made available.

The remaining money will be used to finance another project to be announced in a future issue of the alumni magazine.

New Home

For years the Journalism department has been looking for a building with adequate facilities for practical teaching.

This month they found such a building in the recently renovated Botany building. This 50-year-old structure, which has been used as the bacteriology annex in recent years, now contains a modern photo laboratory and darkroom, typography and advertising laboratories. Four new laboratories have also been added, two of which will be used for editing work, copy and layout.

Outfitted with individual offices for journalism staff members, the building also contains a small library and houses the business letter writing program.

Rhodes Scholar

John Delane Wilson, president of the senior class and a first string defensive halfback on the Spartan football team, has been awarded a Rhodes scholarship to Oxford University, England.

Majoring in history and political science, Wilson had a 3.7 average (4.0 is perfect) at the end of his junior year last spring.

Wilson was one of four candidates to be selected from the Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin, Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky district.

Wilson was chosen as M.S.C.'s candidate by Dr.

Harry R. Hoppe, associate professor of English and chairman of the Rhodes scholarship committee; Dr. Thomas H. Osgood, dean of the School of Graduate Studies; Dr. James Braddock, associate professor of zoology; and J. Robert Stewart, M.S.C. director of scholarships.

The scholarship amounts to about $2,000 a year for two years with a possibility of extending the program to three years.

Wilson

SPARTAN CONTRIBUTION: Ward Ouradnik, '53, outlines the place where a new stained glass window, sponsored by his class, will be installed in the Memorial Chapel. Contributions for the window, chairs for the Chapel reception rooms, and for the M.S.C. Fund program constituted a $3,000 gift from the senior class to the college. Alumni director and senior class advisor Starr Keesler (right) accepted the gift for the college.

New Record Staffer

A new name to RECORD readers this issue is Don Ellis, '53, who as Editorial Assistant of the magazine will be reporting to alumni the "Affairs of State."

Ellis, who hails from Evanston, Ill., is an advertising major in the Department of Journalism.

He replaces Richard J. Dandeneau, who is leaving M.S.C. this month to join the staff of the University of Illinois.

Dandeneau

Dandeneau has been assistant news editor in the Department of Information Services and associate editor of THE RECORD for the past three years.

At Illinois he will edit publications of the Business Management Service, the University's extension service for small businessmen. He will also serve as specialist in business letter writing, report writing, direct mail advertising, house organs, and employer-employee communications.

Faculty Affairs

Charles C. Killingsworth, head of the M.S.C. economics department, stepped into the hotbed of the coal miner's wage dispute last month as President Truman named him chairman of the Wage Stabilization Board (WSB).

Killingsworth replaced Archibald Cox who quit in protest of the President's decision to overrule the board in the soft coal wage increase case.

Dr. Killingsworth was granted a seven-month leave of absence from his East Lansing post when he was appointed vice-chairman of the WSB last October.

No novice in public service, the 35-year-old economist served as panel chairman on the national war labor board from 1943 to 1945 and was chief of the analytical studies unit of the social security board in 1945 and 1946.

While his major work in the field of labor-management relations came in 1947 as umpire in the dispute between Bethlehem Steel company and the United Steelworkers of America, and again in 1950-51 as chairman of the arbitration board set up by the United States Steel corporation, he has served as arbitrator in more than 250 other labor-management disputes all over the country.

His book, "State Labor Relations acts," published in 1948, is one of the first thorough analyses of the policies, provisions and effects of state labor relations laws.

GUEST ON THE CAMPUS: Michigan Staters had been hearing for some time about the quality of the Purdue Men's Glee Club. Last month they heard in person. The 50-member glee club, under the direction of Albert P. Stewart, sang to a packed Union Ballroom audience and won prolonged and enthusiastic applause.

A native of Webb City, Mo., Dr. Killingsworth holds degrees from Missouri State College, Oklahoma A. and M. and the University of Wisconsin.

He came to M.S.C. in 1947 as an associate professor and was promoted to head of the economics department in January, 1949.

Another staff member has been elevated to a top post in his field. He is Kermit H. Smith, assistant registrar, who has been elected vice-president of the Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers.

January 17 was a big day for Leonard Falcone, veteran director of the M.S.C. Band. In recognition of his 25 years as director and "long services and inspired leadership" old band members took over the M.S.C. Union and presented him with a 25th Anniversary Banquet. From a relatively small musical group, Falcone has built an organization of 120 members with a reputation of excellence among college musical groups.

For Exceptional Service

Michigan State College's radio station, WKAR, has been selected as one of two educational radio stations in the nation to receive the National Safety Council's Public Interest Award for exceptional service to farm safety.

The award cited WKAR's work in the field of farm safety by referring to the station's use of safety notes on its regular programs, broadcasting special farm safety announcements and farm safety spot announcements, and making 34 special tape recordings on farm safety for other Michigan radio stations.

The other educational radio station to receive an award was KUOM, St. Paul, Minn., University of Minnesota station.

Gifts and Grants

In the last three months $170,269.30 in gifts and grants were received by Michigan State College from more than 20 organizations, groups and individuals.

Most of the gifts and grants are to be used for research-purposes.

The largest single grant was $22,000 from the William and Sarah E. Hinman Endowment Fund to provide for Hinman Scholarships for the 1952-1953 school year.

Another grant included $15,876 from the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission research contracts division, Chicago, for continued studies of radioactive nutrients when applied to above-ground portions of horticultural crops.

The National Institute of Health, Bethesda, Md., gave two grants totaling $17,068 to the agricultural chemistry department for (1) continued study of the isolation of antibacterial substances from plants; and (2) a study of metabolism of radioactive cobalt in rats.

Faculty Spotlight

To be a good lecturer an instructor need not use elongated words, but he must be able to conjure and project an image to his students. Dr. Adrian H. Jaffe, assistant professor of the English department, has this talent to a remarkable degree.

Jaffe

During his six years at Michigan State College, Dr. Jaffe has enjoyed immense popularity among his students. This may be attributed to his witticism, deep sensitivity and perception.

Dr. Jaffe received his bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Michigan. In 1950 he obtained a doctorate at New York University. Previously he served with the U. S. Army in the Adjutant General's department.

Dr. Jaffe is the author of three books and many papers and articles. He is also a member of the Modern Language Association, the American Association of University Professors and the Michigan Academy of Science, Art and Letters.

A young man goes to college . . .

Early this fall 3,152 young people shed their high school caps and gowns and turned to a new educational experience. They entered college.

Within a week on the Spartan campus they packed into one big step the adjustment from high school to an institution of higher learning. How they went about it is told through the eyes of one of their class in the pictures appearing on these pages.

A Big Step

He is Howard Birks, '56, a typical member of the entering freshman class at Michigan State this fall.

Howard comes from Williamsburg, Mich., and he joined a class which is ten times the total population of his home town.

Says Howard, "It was a big step for me, and in my first week at Michigan State I must admit it took a lot to keep up with all of the activities of orientation. But it was a fine experience—one I won't soon forget."

Will Major in Speech

Enrolling in the Basic College, as do all entering M.S.C. students, Howard has his sights set on speech as his college major. Although he likes painting, he wants to make his career in radio and theatrical work, with art as a hobby.

This was his reason for going to college, and it corresponds with a survey taken of his classmates who also say they went to college first because they felt it the best way to better their positions in their chosen fields of work.

As an artist Howard has already carved a niche for himself, having sold a number of his oil paintings while a high school student.

Howard's interest and talent in art were combined in high school with a major in English and history and minor in science. He played varsity football, basketball and baseball, had the lead roles in a number of high school plays, was art editor of his high school newspaper, and was president of his senior class.

Alumni Recommendation

During the summers Howard works on his father's cherry farm which is located near Traverse City. Howard, Sr., in addition to owning a farm, is production foreman of an industrial firm in Traverse City.

Howard was like the majority of his class in another way—namely that he chose Michigan State because an alumnus told him about the college. Most students in the survey said that alumni recommendations were their first reason for picking M.S.C.

The Four Years Ahead

Howard had also visited the campus and liked it. He learned too that good drama, speech and art courses were offered by the college. Because he can look forward to military service upon graduation, he was also interested in State's R.O.T.C. program.

Howard has a good start along the four-year road to a college education. He has begun his speech work along with the Basic College subjects: humanities, communications, the sciences and social science. It will be four years of hard work and study for Howard and his classmates—but a four-year experience designed to shape a fruitful and meaningful career for the future.

HOWARD'S NEW HOME TOWN

COVERING THE CLUBS

By STARR H. KEESLER, '41

Social Climber

Among the fastest growing alumni groups in the state is the Dearborn club. Now starting its fifth year, the club numbers more than 100 active members. Its board of directors plans at least one affair every other month, ranging from football movies to picnics and formal dances. It sponsored several Dearborn High School seniors for scholarships to M.S.C. in 1952.

The 1952-53 activities began with an election of directors at the annual spring banquet last May. Professor Paul Bagwell, head of the Dept. of Communication Skills was guest speaker. A card party for the ladies followed in June. In September, a mixer party in the Dearborn Community Center called out 100 Spartans and their friends for games and dancing.

In October the club joined the Notre Dame and U. of M. alumni groups in Dearborn for the third year in sponsoring the annual University Ball. The semi-formal affair is becoming a highlight of the Dearborn social season. An evening of football movies in the country club was held in November.

Other activities planned this year include a January banquet; February, Mardi Gras costume party; Michigan State Glee Club concert, and card party, in April; annual banquet and election of directors, May; picnic, June.

Officers of the club are Bob Crewe, '49, president; Bob Billig, '49, vice-president; Mrs. Donald Casson, '49, secretary; and Bob Johnson, '48, treasurer.

Michigan Clubs

An early November meeting of the Clinton County Alumni Club at St. Johns turned out approximately 85 fans to witness a film showing of the Michigan State-Purdue football game.

Fred Perry, '42, club president, welcomed the football players and coaches of four county high schools.

The Spartan Alumnae Club of Greater Lansing staged a "Female Stag" buffet and card party at the Hotel Olds Oct. 24, the eve of Michigan State's gridiron clash with Penn State.

This Homecoming party welcomed all alumnae and their guests. White mum corsages were presented at the door by Mrs. John Kobs Jr., '48, who directed plans for the annual affair.

The Spartan "Fight Song" and movies of the M.S.C.-Notre Dame game brought back plenty of memories to 33 alumni in Isabella and Clare counties Dec. 10.

Meeting in Central Michigan College's Keeler Union ballroom, the group held a brief business meeting, collecting all-important dues, before the film. Then former M.S.C.'ers hastily headed for the nearest TV set to watch another State product—Chuck Davey—triumph over Fitzie Prudden.

The Ottawa County Alumni Club met for a reorganizational meeting Dec. 2. Al Bransdorfer, '50, was toastmaster. He introduced members of the local high school football team who were guests of the club.

Starr Keesler, '41, alumni director, was on hand to bring the club up-to-date on campus activities, and to narrate the current M.S.C.-Notre Dame football game.

Detroit's annual "Spartan Football Bust" was held Dec. 3. Some 400 members attended the banquet which honored Spartan football coaches and players.

Harry Wismer, w'37, nationally known sportscaster was toastmaster. Principal speakers of the evening were Dale Stafford, '30, former Detroit Free Press managing editor, coaches Munn, Daugherty, Edwards and Sebo.

Elsewhere in Michigan

Plans to have the Michigan State College Men's Glee Club appear in concert at Port Huron again this spring were discussed at the October meeting of the St. Clair County Alumni Club. The dinner meeting was attended by some 50 members.

At a fall meeting in Crosswell, Sanilac County, 40 members heard Professor Paul Bagwell, head of the Department of Communication Skills speak on "Michigan State's Growth and Educational Philosophy." Bill Corbishley, '51, club president, presided.

K. C. Festerling, club president of Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Emmet Counties, called that club's first fall meeting in late October. Forty members witnessed the first showing in Petoskey of the new campus film, "The Widening Circle." Jack Breslin, '46, alumni field secretary, was on hand to narrate the Michigan State-University of Michigan game.

Cass County alumni held their annual election of officers in late October, naming to office Henry Fisher, '48, president; Harold L. Sparks, '38, vice-president; Kenneth Willoughby, '47, secretary.

The 70 members heard William L. Davidson, '13, M.S.C. Fund Director, explain the Michigan State fund raising program.

Branch County alumni held their annual fall meeting at the Unity Grange HONOR LOCAL GRID STARS: More than 190 persons attended the annual football meeting of the Alpena Alumni Club which honored local high school football stars and their coaches. Proceeds from the event went to the club's scholarship fund which is to be used to sponsor M.S.C. scholarships for talented Alpena high school students.

Hall in November. The program featured a showing of the University of Michigan vs. Michigan State football film. Prior to the film and a business meeting, dinner was served to the 76 attending members.

Genesee alumni, headed up by Phil Munson, '43, turned out for the club's annual Stag Smoker. Films of the Michigan State-Purdue football game were shown, as well as the 1948 M.S.C.-Oregon State game.

Calhoun County shifted its regular meeting place from Battle Creek to Albion for the November meeting. Fifty members from the eastern part of the county turned out to witness the new campus film, "The Widening Circle," and the Purdue-Michigan State football game.

In early December, the Monroe Alumni Club turned out the largest crowd in its history. More than 280 members were on hand to welcome and honor three of Michigan State's football stars. Honored were Doug Weaver, Billy Wells, and Frank Kush.

Manistee alumni turned around the other day and found their club president missing! Duane Butterfield, '48, an employee of the Consumers Power Company was suddenly transferred from the Manistee branch to Lansing, which left the club temporarily without an exec.

Tom Stege, '49, former club president returned to the "helm" temporarily to conduct the November meeting of the club. A new club president will be selected in the near future, according to Stege.

Grid Meetings

Football at Michigan State came to a triumphal close in late November, but Michigan State alumni around the state continue to focus their interest on the season's top games by way of the movie camera. Some 25 clubs featured football films as their main event in November and December. Sault Ste. Marie turned out 85 members to witness the Spartan tussle with Oregon State. Dec. 1, 120 Shiawassee alumni saw the Spartan-Irish clash. At Grand Rapids, 125 witnessed the Penn State-Green and White game, and the M.S.C.-Purdue game Nov. 10.

Saginaw alumni were on hand in early November for the Texas A&M and Oregon State game.

Members of the Jackson County Alumni Club met Nov. 5 to see the Penn State-Michigan State game and the Syracuse-Michigan State game.

In western Michigan, Muskegon County alumni turned out to see the Spartans go against Michigan and Notre Dame.

One hundred-fifty alumni and friends met in Detroit in late November for a film showing of the Spartan-Irish grid battle and the Indiana-State game.

In the southeast section of the state, 85 alumni witnessed the Notre Dame and KENT COUNTY FOOTBALL BUST: All-city football stars in Grand Rapids were guests of 200 Kent County alumni who held their annual football banquet in December. Principal speaker was End Coach Earle Edwards. Spartan stars Ed Timmerman and Don McAuliffe (above) also attended.

Purdue games. The Lenawee County Alumni Club sponsored the film showing which was held in Adrian.

Two grid games were shown to Montcalm alumni Nov. 13. Films shown were the Indiana-State game and the Boiler-makers vs. Michigan State.

The Calhoun County Alumni Club held its Nov. 21 meeting in Battle Creek. Sixty-five members attended the showing of the Spartans vs. Purdue and Notre Dame.

Out-of-State Clubs

Top welterweight contender, Chuck Davey, '49, didn't pull any punches Nov. 12, in a question and answer session at a dinner meeting of the Michigan State College Alumni Club of South Bend, Indiana. He predicted the Spartans would beat Notre Dame going away.

Davey shared the spotlight with movies of the Michigan-Michigan State game at the alumni gathering which is annually held a few days before the Notre Dame-State grid tilt.

Approximately 125 members attended the meeting. Program chairman was Bob Allwardt, '48.

At Philadelphia, Pa., in early November, 55 club members turned out to see color movies of the Michigan-Michigan State game and the new campus film, "The Widening Circle."

Washington, D. C., Alumni honored members of the college staff attending the Land Grant College Association meetings in that city on Nov. 11.

An election of officers was held at the Nov. 12 meeting of the New York City group. Elected to office were Joe Cranmore, '45, president; John Hickey, '44, vice-president; Peggy Swihart, '50, secretary-treasurer.

In Cleveland, Ohio, 70 club members witnessed a showing of the M.S.C.-Michigan game and "The Widening Circle."

Three other meetings were held in the eastern part of the country in mid-December at Schenectady, Rochester, and Buffalo, New York.

Chicago alumni held their annual December Football Bust Dec. 8. The 200 members present played host to 20 high school athletes and coaches from the Chicago area. Michigan State's athletic department was represented by head coach "Biggie" Munn, "Duffy" Daugherty and Danny Devine.

Out in Denver, Colorado, alumni gathered twice during the football season for TV and radio parties to witness the M.S.C.-Texas A&M game and the State-Notre Dame game.

The pre-game meeting held in Indianapolis Nov. 7, was a combination business and social gathering. Club members elected to office Robert Kershaw, '42, president; Dr. Paul Fugazotti, '47, vice-president; George Bodfish, '47, secretary; Herbert Buell, '15, treasurer.

Dean Lloyd C. Emmons, retired dean of the School of Science and Arts, was the featured speaker of the evening.

In the blue Pacific, the Honolulu chapter of the M.S.C. alumni met Nov. 17 for a film showing of the Michigan-Michigan State game. Lowell Eklund, '39, club president, presided.

Prior to the Purdue-State game at Lafayette, Indiana, alumni welcomed John Hannah, Ralph Young, Biggie Munn and Starr Keesler to their informal get-together.

(Right) A well-known gathering-place for State students for the last three decades is Charlie Washburn's Smokeshop. Here we see Washburn, '17 (second from left) and some of his patrons of 1920. At that time the Smokeshop was in a frame building on part of the present site of Mary Lee's Candy Shop. It has been moved twice since then.

(Left) No pep rally or basketball game in the 'twenties was complete until after the famous Swartz Creek Band had made its colorful appearance. Founded by the singing cheer-leader, Mark Small, '22, and named for the mythical Alma Mater of "Hank the Barber," the group gathered players from the College Band. The alto-horn-playing "flapper," Graham Eddy, '28, was frequently asked for a dance when the band played in surrounding towns. In pre-war I cadet jacket, the director, Forrest Rinehart, '28, holds a baton instead of the more-familiar sink-plunger. Had the boys accepted the invitation to tour the Keith Vaudeville circuit in 1928, Spike Jones might never have had his chance.

(Right) C. V. Ballard's retirement in September from the directorship of the Cooperative Extension Service marked the end of 37 years of service to M.S.C. After graduation in 1912, he became agricultural agent in Dickinson County, in the Upper Peninsula. There loggers farmed a few acres in summer and worked in the woods during the winter. Any oats not fed to their horses were used for seed in the spring, along with the accumulation of weed seeds shaken down from 200 or more bushels of grain. The fanning mill on the back of Ballard's 1916 Ford helped him to introduce the idea of clean seed to a county much in need of it.

(Right, lower) Ballard is shown (second from left, bottom row) in this picture of Chester L. Brewer's 1910 football team. Those were the days when a team had three downs in which to make 5 yards, when the best play was one in which the backfield pushed the player—not the ball—forward, and when a rounder ball and different rules from those of today made the pass an infrequent play. Others in the picture include: two players named on Walter Eckersall's All Western Second Team for 1910, Ernest W. Baldwin, '11, top row, fourth from right; and Leon C. Exelby, '10, middle row, fourth from right. George F. Pingel, w'13, father of All-American John S. Pingel, '39, is in the top row, second from right. The father of basketball player Fred A. Stone, Jr., '43, is the first player on the left in the middle row. Fred, Sr., graduated in 1912. Coach Brewer is at Stone's right.
