Cover

There were gala days for Michigan State College in Pasadena and vicinity during the holidays. And the most gala day of all was the big Rose Bowl game with all its color and pageantry. The cover picture by Prisk Paddock, Pasadena Star-News, shows the M.S.C. marching band in formation during the spectacular half-time show. Four extra pages have been added to this issue for complete coverage of Rose Bowl activities—the game, the spectacle, the alumni events. See pages 8-13.

There probably is no other college band in the country to compare with the Michigan Staters. They play well, march with the precision of West Pointers (if not with the same stately dignity) and engage in mid-field precision stunts which would make the Rockettes turn green with envy.

The scene in the Michigan State dressing room after the Rose Bowl game was as crammed with emotion as the game was with thrills.

Alumni in Kansas City, Mo. welcome the Spartan marching band and present band director Leonard Falcone with a scroll and key to the city. Left to right, M. H. Small, '22, J. J. Dobbs, Oldsmobile executive, L. P. Cookingham, city manager, Col. W. A. Schulgen, '26, and Judd Cash, '25.

After all the players had piled in, Coach Biggie Munn blew his whistle. His voice was choked and he was nearly in tears as he told his team:

"I've never been so proud of a game in my life. I want to thank all of you. There are tears in my eyes, but I can't help it. I appreciate it so much. Let's say a prayer."

The entire squad went to their knees and some were weeping as they prayed.

"God bless you," said Munn as the prayer ended.

They've got bigger things in cracker-jack boxes than what Michigan State put on the field yesterday.

But never was anything crammed with more heart and hustle than those little green-shirted guys from Lansing, the newest dot on the Big Ten map.

They were battered and beaten, physically and numerically, in the first half, then gamely rebounded in the second to soundly thrash UCLA.

The thousands who came here from Michigan to witness the Rose Bowl game celebrated the Spartan victory far into the night after the traffic cleared from the stadium area.

Automobiles flying the Michigan State colors made themselves heard throughout the area.

The homeward journey started for many. Hundreds more will depart on Sunday, but a number who came here by motor car plan to take their time and drive through Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, and other southern states on their return trip.

Lansing State Journal

It was our pleasure to have luncheon with President Hannah after the conference. Our host was an old friend, Russ Simmons, Michigan State alumnus, former great sailing yacht helmsman and a top executive in the Sunkist Growers' Association.

There again Dr. Hannah proved his loyalty to intercollegiate athletics and added to this his deep-seated theories that the success of our nation's future rests with the proper administration of our colleges and universities.

We here and now apologize to Dr. John A. Hannah for our too hasty condemnation of his work as chairman of the American Council on Education's president's committee.

We welcome the fact that he's a champion for intercollegiate athletics.

Member of the American Alumni Council, THE RECORD is published seven times a year by THE DEPARTMENT OF INFORMATION SERVICES, Michigan State College. Entered as second class matter at East Lansing, Michigan, under the Act of Congress, August 24, 1912.

The Campus in January, 1954

NINETEEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-FOUR arrived on a still campus; a campus barren of students, nearly barren of faculty and staff members. It was a ghost campus on January 1, 1954, just as it is always on New Year's Day.

But this New Year's Day was different—different than any New Year's Day in the history of Michigan State College. Students and faculty and staff were not just at home for the holiday. They were in California this New Year's Day, representing their university at the annual Rose Bowl game. For suddenly it seemed that the whole campus had moved to Pasadena—students, faculty and staff, plus thousands of alumni. To those who attended the Rose Bowl game and to those who were there via television or in spirit, it was obvious that another milestone in the colorful history of Michigan State College was reached on this New Year's Day.

Ground-breaking

Back on the East Lansing campus there was evidence of another milestone in the history of M.S.C. Between the existing library and Wells Hall, behind Beal Botanical Gardens and the library annex, were mountainous snow-capped hills of dirt, huge power shovels, great and monstrous-looking earth-moving machines. They were evidence that work had begun on the much-needed, long-awaited library—a library adequate to the needs of more than 14,000 students.

The Michigan legislature had authorized construction and had appropriated the first $1,000,000 of the proposed $4,000,000-cost for the new edifice. It will contain space for one million volumes, and will house 100 faculty research rooms, 200 cubicles for graduate students and a specially-equipped reading room for blind students.

Photographs in the center column of this page show the library site as earth-breaking was begun. College officials hope the new building will be completed by 1955, M.S.C.'s Centennial year.

There were many indications of continued progress on the M.S.C. campus as 1953 came to a close. On the threshold of its 99th year, Michigan State maintained its position as first-of-all a university dedicated to the educational needs of more than 14,000 students. In serving these educational needs, continued efforts were made to provide as much individual attention as possible. For example, the average class section in 1953 in the Basic College had only 32 students. There were 128 courses of study offered during the year, 65 of them on the graduate level.

In the physical plant, continued building was underway in 1953. Housing facilities including new residence halls to house 2,700 men were under construction. The first unit, Butterfield Hall, was opened in late September. These units are constructed on a self-liquidating basis and at no expense to the public.

Three 12-unit apartment buildings for married students were under construction with one completed and the other two to be finished in early 1954. In its December, 1953 meeting, the State Board of Agriculture revealed that it hopes to begin construction of a $1-million married student housing project by April. This construction will also be self-liquidating without cost to the public.

Overseas

On the international scene in 1953, Michigan State expanded its services and provided benefits of its experiences and know-how to the people of many countries.

The most recent endeavor was to help establish the first school of business administration in Brazil. Participation in this project by M.S.C. is being financed by the U.S. Technical Cooperation Administration. Two members of the M.S.C. business school faculty will serve as technical advisors each year.

Other M.S.C. international programs continued in effect at such widely scattered points as India, Colombia, and the Ryukyu Islands in the East China Sea. In a program unique in American education, M.S.C. "adopted" for the third consecutive year the University of the Ryukyus on Okinawa, America's "Western Gibraltar." Five M.S.C. faculty members are serving at the infant university.

The ninety-ninth year began with jubilation and the feeling that 1954 would be another year of progress, and a further realization of its heritage as a cosmopolitan university serving the people of the state, the nation and the world.

'Dance Ballerina Dance'

THE DANCE is never ended for dancers of Sadler's Wells Ballet company which appeared on campus for two performances in November. The company performed in the evening, but mornings and afternoons saw dancers rehearsing on the stage of the M.S.C. auditorium for the next performance.

The world renowned English company, considered by most dance enthusiasts to be the finest ballet company performing in the western world, was brought to the campus by the M.S.C. concert-lecture series. It was one of the many outstanding attractions presented for students, staff and alumni in the area during the fall term.

Dean S. E. Crowe who is in charge of the series, selects top attractions to present to the university family on a low-cost basis. During the fall term subscribers enjoyed the New York City Opera company productions of "Carmen," "Don Giovanni" and "The Consul." Other attractions included the Guard Republican Band of Paris, The First Piano Quartet, and the St. Paul's Cathedral Choir from London. In February, the lecture-concert series will present the Agnes de Mille ballet theater, Robert Merrill and Jan Peerce, Jascha Heifetz, the Toronto Symphony orchestra and the Boston "Pops" orchestra.

When they become available—often-times on a "one-night stand"—"extra" attractions are offered. Price of these programs is not included in the season ticket price, but tickets are available. During the fall term these extras included the "Caine Mutiny Courtmartial" directed by Dick Powell, with Henry Fonda, John Hodiak and Lloyd Nolan; Stan Kenton and his orchestra; and the "Turnabout Theatre" of Hollywood.

In addition to stage and musical attractions, the lecture-concert series includes the nation's top lecturers. During the fall term, Eddie Gilmore, former Moscow correspondent for the Associated Press, appeared. Marguerite Higgins who won a Pulitzer prize for her reporting of the Korean war was on the lecture program in November, and in the winter term, subscribers will hear Arthur Treacher, Dr. Gerald Wendt and Bernard DeVoto.

The lecture-concert series also presents a full program of world travel lectures. Among the travel lecturers who have appeared on the 1953-54 program are Lowell Thomas, Sr., Bob Friars and Thayer Soule.

New Home for Summer Scientists

SCIENCE TEACHERS, botanists, entomologists and others interested in studying the natural sciences can have a "field day" this summer at the new M.S.C. biological station.

The former home of W. K. Kellogg, Battle Creek cereal manufacturer and philanthropist who died in 1951, will be used for the first time this year as the Kellogg Gull Lake Biological Station of Michigan State College.

Two sessions will begin June 23 at the spacious and picturesque grounds. The six-week session will end August 4 and the nine-week session will end August 24. Courses will be offered in nature studies, botany, entomology, zoology, fisheries and wild life, bacteriology, parasitology and education.

"The large range of facilities and conditions at the estate and adjoining grounds will provide M.S.C. with one of the most diversified stations of its kind in America," said Dr. H. J. Stafseth, head of the division of biological sciences and station director.

The manor house on the 32-acre estate will house women's dormitories, laboratories, library, dining facilities and recreational facilities. Other buildings on the estate include greenhouses, head house, men's dormitories, laboratories, museum, director's residence, and a trailer village for married students. In today's market, the extensive facilities are valued at $2-million.

Students will also use the facilities of the Kellogg bird sanctuary, Kellogg forest, Kellogg farm and the Kellogg feed research laboratories for study and research. These facilities are conveniently located to the Kellogg biological station.

M.S.C.'s first biological summer school was conducted in 1929 at Kellogg farm, said Dr. Walter F. Morofsky, professor of entomology who will be resident director for the station this summer. The school was conducted at the farm until 1939 when it was moved to Clear Lake near Atlanta where it remained until the summer of 1941. At that time the station's facilities were taken over by the U. S. Coast Guard.

In 1952 intensive planning for the present station was initiated by Dean Milton E. Muelder of the School of Science and Arts. Establishment of the new station, Dean Muelder said, "is a contribution of a very high order in fulfilling a long-existing need."

Additional information concerning the summer session and application forms are available by writing to Dr. Morofsky, 230 Natural Science building.

Fabulous Family Builds Big Bin

YOU MAY have read recently about the Andersons of Maumee, Ohio, and their "Big Pour." You may have read about this fabulous farm family in Life or Business Week, the New York Times or the Milwaukee Journal. There were news reports on the Andersons' "Big Pour" in the Chicago Daily Tribune, the Cleveland Plain Dealer, the Toledo Times, the Youngstown Vindicator, the Toledo Blade and the Maumee Valley News. Four members of the Anderson family are M.S.C. alumni.

If you missed accounts of the Andersons' latest activities in the magazines and newspapers, this is what they did: they built 20 connected concrete grain storage elevators—"the Big Pour," as it was labeled by the newspapers. What's so great about that?, you may ask. Anybody can build a grain elevator—if they have the money and the time.

But the Andersons, a family partnership, built the huge storage bins in 12¼ days, with help of 225 students and 50 farmers. Each of the 20 silos is 168-feet high and the completed unit brought capacity of the Andersons' Truck Terminal at Maumee to 4-million bushels, the largest single grain storage elevator unit in the Ohio-Michigan-Indiana area. The whole structure was constructed by college boys and farmers with little or no construction experience. They were supervised by permanent employees of the Anderson organization.

Senior partner of the Andersons is Harold Anderson and members of his family—his wife, Margaret, sons John, Tom, Bob, Don, Dick, daughter Carol and two of John's sons, John Jr. and Mike Anderson—are full partners in the Anderson enterprises. These include Anderson Elevator Co., Anderson Truck Terminal, Anderson Farmer Corporation, and Anderson Foundation, all located at Maumee, nine miles southwest of Toledo.

Four of Harold Anderson's five sons attended Michigan State College—John, w'46; Tom, w'46; Don, w'52; and Dick, '53. Tom and Dick were both presidents of Farm House Fraternity.

The Andersons advertised for student workers in 80 college newspapers when they began planning the Big Pour. They offered wages, free room and board, plus swimming, golf and football practice. A football coach was also hired to organize athletic contests. The 225 boys worked 'round-the-clock shifts and when the "Big Pour" was completed, each boy was $291 richer for his work.

When it was all done, when the first bushels of grain were stored in the new units, many people agreed with one woman who commented: "That's the most American thing I've seen anyone do in years!"

Can Placement Bureau Help You?

WANT a $10,000-a-year job? If you are qualified, contact the M.S.C. Placement Bureau.

In fact, if you want a job of any type, the Placement Bureau, under the direction of Jack Breslin, will probably be able to help you. While not every job listed with the Bureau is in the upper pay brackets, a wide variety of jobs are now available for alumni, Breslin says. There is no charge or fee for this placement service.

A model for placement bureaus in other colleges and universities, the M.S.C. Bureau assisted hundreds of alumni last year in securing new positions. To assist alumni in presenting their qualifications to employers, a new system, developed under the direction of Bob Clark, '44, Assistant Director of the Bureau, has been inaugurated.

Under the new system, an alumnus completes a Placement Bureau form which contains the questions chosen by personnel executives as being most important. Reproductions of this completed form are sent by the Bureau to each employer in need of a person with the qualifications offered by the alumnus. At the same time, the alumnus is notified of the employers who are receiving reproductions. Thereafter, employers initiate the contact.

Clark says this new system eliminates the need for an alumnus to type a supply of individual information sheets. This system has been made possible by a recently installed reproduction machine. "Personnel managers agree that time saved by this new system will also be important in obtaining desirable positions for our alumni," Clark says.

If you desire new employment, whether you have work experience or are being discharged from military service with no background of civilian employment experience, you are urged by Breslin and Clark to register with the M.S.C. Placement Bureau.

The registration form may be obtained by writing to the Placement Bureau, Room 101, Morrill Hall.

A secretary operates the new reproducing machine. Service is available without charge.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Leave Extended

Upon the request of Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, the State Board of Agriculture extended for six additional months the leave of Dr. John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State College, to continue as Assistant Secretary of Defense in charge of Manpower and Personnel. Dr. Hannah was granted a year's leave of absence in Feb., 1953, to assume the Defense department post.

In a letter to Clark L. Brody, chairman of the Board, Secretary Wilson said: "During the coming session of Congress we expect to be faced with many legislative problems in this area and feel that Dr. Hannah's great ability, together with the knowledge and experience he has gained during the past year, makes it vital that he continue to head this office during their presentation to Congress, since he has directed the formulation of the policies and legislation which will be under consideration."

Retirements

Three department heads will begin retirement leaves this year. Ralph H. Young, director of athletics and a member of the M.S.C. athletic department for 31 years, will begin his retirement leave on July 1, 1954 and will retire from the college faculty on July 1, 1955.

Albert A. Applegate, head of the department of journalism, will also retire from the College on July 1, 1955 following a year's furlough. He joined the staff as head of the journalism department in 1936.

Claud L. Brattin, head of the department of engineering drawing, will retire July 1, 1955, following a year's furlough. He has completed 35 years of service on the faculty.

Eight other retirements from the faculty family have been announced. They are: Harry Barnett, foreign languages; Wilda F. Bolles, social work; Bruce Hartsuch, chemistry; Hattie Ingram, buildings and utilities; Harry L. Kelly, barracks apartments; Alice Leathers, foreign languages; William Murphy, extension service; and Barney Slayton, military science.

Library to Museum

Upon the recommendation of Dr. Hannah, the State Board of Agriculture has designated the present library edifice to be the M.S.C. museum when the new library building is completed. At present the museum is housed in cramped quarters in the basement of the College auditorium building.

Graduation

Michigan State College awarded degrees to 480 students at graduation exercises on Dec. 8. Of these, 130 students received advanced degrees. Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, president of Michigan State Normal College at Ypsilanti, presented the graduation address to the graduates and their families. Degrees were conferred by Dr. Hannah. Alumni were welcomed by Starr Keesler, director of alumni relations.

Commendation

The College was commended recently for its cooperation with the Michigan Heart Association in the development of the Cardiac Homemakers program. This program, conducted on a cooperative basis, has received national recognition, according to Ernest T. Guy, executive secretary of the Michigan Heart Association. The American Heart Association is using the program as a model for other affiliates throughout the U.S.

On the Air

Michigan's first educational television station began telecasting activities on January 15. Dedication ceremonies included a conference on educational television and a dinner attended by College and national television dignitaries. The College station, WKAR-TV, is to be seen on UHF Channel 60 in a radius of approximately 65 miles of East Lansing.

Farmers' Week

Thousands of Michigan State College alumni who see little of their alma mater at other seasons—except perhaps for a fast football shuttle on Saturday afternoon—will be back "in school" Feb. 1 to 5.

Graduates of regular degree programs and short course training will be seeking tips to do a better job of farming. They will leave their neighbors, families and hired men to do necessary chores while they take part in the 39th annual Farmers' Week. Wives will come along, in many cases, to benefit from home economics programs and some will have 4-H Club children in a talent show.

What brings them back to the college's annual "open house" for farm folks besides a constant desire for knowledge that will improve their farming and their living?

Some will come for the half-hundred odd annual meetings of dairy breed, livestock, muck farming, beekeeping, safety, flying farmer or other organizations during Farmers' Week.

Some will come to hear outstanding speakers in agricultural, educational, business and other fields—speakers like John H. Davis, assistant U.S. secretary of agriculture, back from United Nations' food talks in Rome.

Some will come for the entertainment programs—with everything from motion pictures on "Canoe Trails" to the 4-H Club talent show and the ex-Spartans, the Nate Fry Trio.

An open house in the home economics building each day will give alumnae a chance to meet the home economics faculty and to see the students at work in the classrooms.

Visitors this year will learn about new foods, and see the expanding research labs for foods and textiles. They will also see the home furnishing studio that provides a "lab" set-up for students in the related arts courses.

Faculty Achievements

Dr. Eldon E. (Jerry) Down, professor of farm crops, has been named a fellow by the American Society of Agronomy. He is also a member of the Society's seed practice committee. Dr. Down has been instrumental in the development of several varieties of wheat, barley, alfalfa, beans, and corn hybrids.

A citation from the California department of Amvets was presented to Dr. Carroll Hawkins, associate professor of political science. Dr. Hawkins received the citation for his booklet, "Communism — Challenge to Americans," which was published by the governmental research bureau. Dean William H. Combs also received a California Amvets citation for the College in behalf of the work of the governmental research bureau. Presentation was made in the office of Governor G. Mennen Williams.

A fellowship in the Soil Conservation Society of America has been conferred upon Russell G. Hill, extension soil conservationist at M.S.C. He is executive secretary of Michigan's state soil conservation committee and has been on the administrative council of the national body for eight years. He has also been treasurer for five years.

Appointment of Dr. Carl A. Hoppert, professor of chemistry, to the board of examiners in basic science has been announced by Governor G. Mennen Williams. Dr. Hoppert has taught at M.S.C. since 1928 and has also served as pre-medical student advisor for 20 years.

New Radio Series

The College radio station, WKAR, has been awarded $6,000 from the National Association of Educational Broadcasters. The funds will be used under the direction of R. J. Coleman, director of the station, for the development and production of a series of 13 radio programs. The programs, titled "Great Lakes—Pathway to Progress", will be distributed over the NAEB tape network.

Faculty Deaths

Dr. Albert J. Huggett, 56, professor of elementary education, died of a heart attack at a Lansing hospital on December 23. A member of the M.S.C. faculty since 1942, Dr. Huggett was widely known for his work and numerous publications in the educational field. His major field was the teaching of science in elementary schools and many of his writings, which included at least six books and about 70 articles for educational publication, dealt with that subject.

Chace Newman, 82, professor emeritus of engineering drawing, died Nov. 2, 1953. He came to M.S.C. as a student and was appointed an instructor in mechanical engineering in 1897. Professor Newman was an outstanding pioneer of East Lansing and a veteran of 42 years service on the College faculty. He was on the first East Lansing city council in 1907 and had been an active promoter for the founding of the city. He was a founder and charter member of the Peoples Church in East Lansing.

Earle H. Stewart, 62, professor emeritus of engineering drawing, died Dec. 2, 1953 at dinner at his home in East Lansing. He began his career at M.S.C. in 1916 and retired in 1952.

Alumnae Club Presidents Meet—Mutual problems are discussed by representatives of Michigan State's five alumnae clubs.

Club Presidents' Workshop

Alumni Club Presidents' Group Discussions—Some 70 alumni club presidents exchange ideas at annual club presidents workshop to improve operations of local clubs.

Coaches and players celebrating the victory—one picture that is truly worth a thousand words.

SPARTANS SUCCESSFULLY INVADE WEST

The coaches suffered some tense moments . . .

But the scoreboard read right . . . finally!

THEY DID IT! And it was a classic among classics—one of the great Rose Bowl games in 40 years of Rose Bowl history. The Spartans met an excellent team—the best of the Pacific Coast Conference. U.C.L.A. was “ready”—and they gave every M.S.C. fan a full 30 minutes of goose-pimples.

Then the second half began, and the rest is sports history. Final score: U.C.L.A. 20, Michigan State College, 28.

On this and the following five pages we present a picture report of the Rose Bowl festivities, action and sidelights. It is presented as a souvenir of a milestone in Spartan history.

A BOUT with pneumonia after the Ohio State game had side-lined Billy Wells for part of the season, but he blossomed on New Year's day and scored two of the Spartans' four touchdowns. And a dream came true for the Chicago senior; a date with movie star Debbie Reynolds.

It was fun for everyone who saw the game . . . and a great moment for Spartan Coach Biggie Munn. His team had reached the pinnacle and with them he had reached the top as a coach. It was to be his last game as coach.

They Gathered Together

THERE WAS an estimated gathering of 14,000 Spartans in Pasadena—students, faculty, staff, alumni, Band members and—the team! They all came to see the gridiron classic—but many old friendships were rekindled, many new memories were established.

California alumni were thoughtful and warm hosts. They sponsored teas and banquets in honor of the occasion and they welcomed the visiting Spartans in a royal and friendly manner, making an exciting trip more enjoyable.

All pictures of Rose Bowl activities that appear in this issue on pages 2, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, and 13 were provided through the courtesy of: the Lansing State Journal; Oldsmobile Division, General Motors Corp. who sponsored the Band's trip to California; Chuck Pardon of the M.S.C. State News; and Everett Huby of the M.S.C. Photographic Lab. The RECORD is grateful to them for their cooperation in making possible this special Rose Bowl coverage.

Secretary and Mrs. Karl H. McDonel are welcomed by Mayor and Mrs. Clarence Winder of Pasadena.

Among the acquaintanceships that were renewed during the Rose Bowl holiday was that of General Dean, recently returned from three years in a Communist prison as a prisoner of war, and Prof. Howard C. Zindel, recently named head of the M.S.C. poultry department. During World War II Colonel Zindel was Senior Logistics officer for Air on General Dean's staff at the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth.

COVERING THE CLUBS

By JOHN MCGOFF, '50

Fall Banquets

Prof. Elwin D. Farwell, a member of the Animal Husbandry Department at M.S.C. was featured speaker at Branch County's annual fall banquet. Approximately 50 alumni attended the dinner. Norm Wise, '39, alumni club president, introduced the speaker. Prof. Farwell, who recently returned from Colombia, South America, showed slides of his trip. Bob Toll, '49, assistant alumni director, narrated the M.S.C.-Texas Christian game.

Jim Hays, dairy extension specialist, highly entertained Tuscola county alumni at a banquet held in Vassar in mid-November. Dairy farmers attending the meeting went away perhaps a little perplexed and amused but much the wiser of their four-legged charges. John McGoff, '50, assistant alumni director, attended the meeting with Professor Hays.

The Twin Lakes - Gilbert Lodge was the scene of the Benzie - Grand Traverse alumni club's fall banquet. Starr Keesler, '41, alumni director, brought the group up-to-date on college affairs. Prior to the showing of the M.S.C. - Minnesota game and the "Widening Circle," alumni joined in community singing. Orm Danford, '40, club president, presided as toastmaster.

Ralph Young, Michigan State's athletic director, was the featured speaker at the Bay County alumni club's annual fish fry in early December. Some 60 alumni and friends attended at the Hampton Township Hall. Mr. Young discussed plans for the forthcoming trip to the Rose Bowl. Other guest speakers from the college were Ben Van Alstyne and John McGoff. The program concluded with a showing of the Michigan State - Ohio State football game movie.

Starr Keesler journeyed to Allegan - Van Buren counties for an alumni meeting with that group in November. In addition to the Minnesota and Purdue football games, the M.S.C. Glee Club quartet sang old and new songs. Members of the quartet are: Don Toms, senior, Jim McMahon, junior, Don Springer, junior and Lowell Everson, freshman. Over 100 members attended the meeting. Jack Johnston, '50, club president, acted as toastmaster.

Game Films Shown

Football game films have been high on the agenda of alumni club activities this Fall. Film showings took alumni representatives thousands of miles around the state in the two-month period.

In early October, Lake - Mason alumni club met for a showing of the Minnesota and Iowa games. Approximately 50 members witnessed the film showing.

At Flint, the annual football smoker turned out well over a hundred Spartan fans. The M.S.C. - Gopher game and the Hawkeye - Spartan tussle were shown.

The Minnesota and Iowa games were also shown at Jackson and Adrian on consecutive nights in mid-October.

Seventy members turned out at Muskegon Heights to witness the Spartans' hair-raising tussle with Texas Christian. The 21-0 win over Minnesota was also shown.

At Detroit, well over 350 alumni turned out for an October and November meeting. Two game films were shown at each meeting. Iowa and Minnesota at the October meeting and Purdue and Ohio State at the November meeting.

1953 was the first year Tawas City ever fielded a football team. As part of their football indoctrination program, the Iosco County alumni club invited members of the team to witness the film showing of the Spartan - Texas Christian game.

Hillsdale County met twice during the fall period. The club saw the M.S.C. - Iowa game and the Gopher - Spartan tussle. Special guests at the October meeting were former Spartan coach Charlie Bachman and Frank "Muddy" Waters.

Bob Shackleton, WKAR sports director, met with the Wayne - Northwest Suburban Club at its October meeting in Northville. The meeting closed with a showing of the Iowa - Michigan State game.

One of the more newly organized groups in the state, the Wyandotte - Downriver Club has been very active this fall, providing alumni in the local area an opportunity to see current Spartan games via the silver screen. At an October meeting the lone Spartan defeat at the hands of Purdue was shown. The mid-December gathering gave alumni a chance to see the Spartans' outstanding game of the season—the Ohio State game. "Postmark East Lansing" was also shown.

In the west-central part of the state some 125 alumni turned out at Shelby to see the Texas Christian and Indiana games. Special guests of the Oceana alumni club were the football teams and students from the high schools of Hart, Shelby, Pentwater and White Cloud.

Calhoun County alumni met at Battle Creek with some 30 members turning out for the early November meeting. The Michigan State - Minnesota game was shown.

An election of officers was held at Lapeer in November. Newly elected president is Fred Bentley, '36. Vice-president is Jim Fitzgerald, '51, and secretary, Mary E. Smith, '37. The meeting concluded with a showing of the Purdue - State game.

One of many activities of Kent County club is the annual November football movies. This year the group saw Purdue and Ohio State games.

Alumni and high school students numbered well over 100 at Manistee for a showing of Ohio State - M.S.C. game.

Largest turn-out of the year for football films was at Cadillac in late November. Some 800 alumni and friends attended the meeting. Michigan State alumni joined forces with the University of Michigan alumni for this showing of the intra-state tussle between the U. of M. and M.S.C.

At Birmingham, 125 alumni and friends were on hand to see the M.S.C. - O.S.U. gridiron battle and the Michigan State - Texas Christian game.

Dearborn alumni waged a big publicity campaign prior to their December meeting which paid off in a large attendance. As part of the publicity campaign, Jack Hamilton, '50, club president and John McGoff, assistant alumni director, appeared on Al Nagler's sports show over WJBK-TV. Spartan followers witnessed two films at the Dearborn meeting, Ohio State and Purdue.

It's the personal call in Cincinnati for better results.

Out-of-State

The newly organized San Diego, California alumni club got off to a good start in October with a visit by President John A. Hannah.

Twenty-six alumni were present to meet Dr. Hannah and hear him give a brief but interesting account of his duties as Assistant Secretary of Defense plus highlights of the College's tremendous development program.

Earl Hotchins, '12, who with Mrs. Hotchins had just arrived from East Lansing for a month's visit with her sister on Point Loma, was also a welcome guest.

A month later, November 14, the club met with the local University of Michigan club at the Kena Kai Club on Shelter Island to watch the M.S.C.-U. of M. game via television. The joint meeting was attended by some 150 alumni and friends.

Television parties during the weekend of the Michigan-Michigan State game were numerous. Two of these parties were held in Denver and Seattle. Michigan State alumni living in Denver met jointly with University of Michigan alumni.

A pre-game meeting was held in Indianapolis. Friday evening prior to the Purdue game at Lafayette some 70 alumni gathered at the Union and Food Service Building at the Indiana University Medical Center in Indianapolis. Guest speakers were Deans Tom King and Edgar Harden, Ralph Young and Starr Keesler. At the Naval Officers Club in Atlanta, Georgia, about 18 alumni met for a dinner-dance in mid-November. Mrs. William Terry, '51, club president, announced that additional meetings will be held in February, May and November.

Another pre-game meeting was held at Columbus on November 6 prior to the Ohio State-Spartan game. Principal speakers at the meeting were president Hannah and Biggie Munn.

A mid-November eastern trip was taken by Starr Keesler, alumni director. Meetings were held in Syracuse, Schenectady, Philadelphia, and Rochester. Clubs had an opportunity to witness the current M.S.C.-Ohio State game and the campus film, "Widening Circle." At Philadelphia and Rochester, club members heard Michigan State's Big Ten athletic representative and Dean of Continuing Education, Ed Harden.

A More Active Club in Cincinnati A New Club at Faraway Okinawa

TWO alumni groups took big steps recently—one club proved it could raise money for the M.S.C. Roll Call, and another group of former M.S.C. students on the island of Okinawa in mid-Pacific formed an M.S.C. alumni club.

It was the Cincinnati, Ohio, club that increased its donors to the M.S.C. Roll Call by 100 per cent over the previous year. Acting as a "pilot" group on a fund-raising plan that Gene Campbell, '38, club president, had been considering for his club, the club proved that personal solicitations are far more effective than a direct mailing.

Campbell

At the October, 1952 alumni club presidents' workshop, Campbell interceded during a discussion of fund-raising methods and suggested that his club be the pilot group.

Simply, the plan was to personally contact all alumni in the Cincinnati area, informing them of the purposes of the annual M.S.C. Roll Call. Contact "teams" were organized within the club and every alumnus living in the Cincinnati club area was contacted. In the picture above, Mrs. Virginia Bollinger, '33 (right), calls upon Mrs. Floyd Edie and Mr. Floyd Edie, '35, to tell them about the Roll Call. This personalized technique afforded every alumnus an opportunity to receive first-hand information about the annual Roll Call program.

As a result of this program, 70 per cent of the 1953 donors were new donors and had not contributed the previous year. We heartily congratulate the Cincinnati club for a big job well done.

In November, the recently organized M.S.C. alumni club of Okinawa played host to members of the M.S.C. Mission to the University of the Ryukyus at a dinner meeting. The club, organized and directed by Dr. Allan Tucker who is on leave of absence from State, is a growing group of former students and graduates of M.S.C. Meetings are held bi-monthly at a centrally located Army service club on the island. Paul Tarabek, '52, is secretary and James Hall, '52, is publicity chairman. Members range from privates to lieutenant colonels.

Best wishes to the Okinawa club for a successful and active club.

Days of Yore

By Madison Kuhn and Joseph G. Duncan

Recently Keats K. Vining, '13, ran across some old negatives made during his school years, which he thought might have some interest for Record readers. Four of them appear on this page, starting at the top and extending down the left side. They show student activities of about 1912.

The pictures of the students riding the Pine Lake Trolley prompted us to examine our files for other pictures concerning the trolley. Below are shown the trolley station, located west of the present Union Building, and the tracks on Michigan avenue, leading to Lansing.

Spartan Personality

Arno H. Johnson, '22

THE SKY'S the limit! That's the business philosophy of Arno H. Johnson, '22, who is a leader of a movement urging business men and economists to raise their sights for America's business future and economy.

Johnson, vice-president and director of media research for J. Walter Thompson advertising agency, was nominated to the Hall of Fame in Distribution in October. America's first distribution hall of fame, it is composed of outstanding men and women who have made significant contributions to the advancement of distribution. Among more than 100 recipients of the honor are: Harvey S. Firestone, Jr.; J. C. Penny; David Sarnoff, RCA; and General Robert E. Wood, Sears, Roebuck & Co.

As a leading marketing authority, Johnson believes and preaches that business can expand continually—with dynamic action charged with courage and optimism.

According to an article in a recent issue of Tide, a magazine of sales and advertising trends, Johnson says that every opportunity for advanced growth is at hand. He feels we are richer, more productive, better educated, have larger families, and enjoy life more than at any period in our history. But he also feels that key executives with 1929-thinking can edge us into a depression if they don't recognize and grasp real opportunities at hand.
