COMMENCEMENT 1969

ACADEMIC COSTUME

The pageantry and color at commencement exercises reveal a record of academic achievement of the various individuals taking part in the exercises. The following brief description is given that the audience might more readily interpret such achievement.

In 1895, the Intercollegiate Commission, a group of leading American educators, met at Columbia University to draft a code which would serve to regulate the design of gowns and hoods indicating the various degrees as well as the colors to indicate the various faculties. This code has been adopted by most of the colleges and universities in America and its use has made identification of scholastic honors an immediate activity.

Three types of gowns are indicated by the code. Those worn by the bachelors have long, pointed sleeves. Those worn by masters have long, closed sleeves with the arc of a circle near the bottom. The arm goes through a slit, giving the appearance of short sleeves for the master's gown. Doctors' gowns are faced with velvet. The sleeves are full, round and open with three bars of velvet on each sleeve. The velvet facing of bars on the sleeves may be black or the same color as the binding of the hood.

Hoods are made of material identical with the gown and are lined in the official academic color of the institution conferring the degree. If the institution has more than one color, the chevron is used to introduce the second color. Colored velvet or velveteen binds the hoods and indicates the department or faculty to which the degree pertains.

Historical associations of color have been continued to signify the various faculties. Arts and letters can be recognized by the white, taken from the traditional white fur trimming of the Oxford and Cambridge Bachelor of Arts hoods. Red, long traditional of the church, indicates theology. The royal purple of the King's court signifies law. The green of medicinal herbs immediately identifies a medical degree. Philosophy is signified by the color of wisdom and truth, blue. Because through research untold wealth has been released to the world, science is identified by golden yellow. Oxford pink indicates music and russet brown, the color of dress worn by ancient English foresters, indicates forestry.

The color of the velvet of the hood is distinctive of the subject to which the degree pertains. For example, the trimming for the degree of Master of Science in Agriculture should be maize, representing agriculture, rather than golden yellow, representing science.

At Michigan State University, it is customary to identify the bachelors graduating from the different departments of study by tassels of the official department color as established by the Intercollegiate Code.

M.S.U., we love thy shadows	When from these scenes we wander
When twilight silence falls,	And twilight shadows fade,
Flushing deep and softly paling	Our mem'ry still will linger
O'er ivy-covered halls.	Where light and shadows played.
Beneath the pines we'll gather	In the evening oft we'll gather
To give our faith so true,	And pledge our faith anew,
Sing our love for Alma Mater	Sing our love for Alma Mater
And thy praises, M.S.U.	And thy praises, M.S.U.

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY

Michigan State University, one of the leading land-grant universities and the first agricultural college in America, strives for excellence in affording liberal and practical education for its students in a broad range of human endeavors.

MSU also serves people of the state, nation and world through its numerous research, extension and international programs.

Now in its 115th year, Michigan State has grown from three buildings and six faculty members to one of the ten largest universities in the nation. It has approximately 3,000 staff members engaged in teaching, research and public service, 439 buildings, and approximately 5,000 acres of land of which 2,010 acres are in existing or planned campus development.

Founded in 1855 to educate youth for the major occupation of that day – farming – MSU has broadened its offerings to meet the educational needs of today. Michigan State now has the School for Advanced Graduate Studies and 15 colleges – Agriculture and Natural Resources, Arts and Letters, Business, Communication Arts, Education, Engineering, Home Economics, Human Medicine, James Madison, Justin S. Morrill, Lyman J. Briggs, Natural Science, Social Science, Veterinary Medicine and the University College. Nearly 200 areas of specialization are available to undergraduates; approximately 300 are offered for graduate students.

The Honors College, which enables superior students to waive normal graduation requirements and undertake individual programs, attracts many of the nation's finest young scholars. The Merit Scholarship Program, of which Michigan State University is a prominent sponsor, enrolled more than 200 Merit Scholars in this year's freshman class. This figure represents approximately seven percent of the nation's total of this unusually select group.

One of the newest of many innovations in higher education made by Michigan State University is its coeducational academic-residence halls. Incorporation of classrooms and faculty offices with living, dining and recreational facilities has given these giant new dormitories, now nine in number, a stimulating academic environment. Each of these halls is the center of curricular and noncurricular activities, creating a "college within a college" atmosphere.

The "small college within the larger university" concept was introduced in 1965 at MSU by the establishment of the Justin S. Morrill College, which offers a limited enrollment liberal education program with an international emphasis; an intensive program in foreign languages is required of all Justin Morrill students. The concept was expanded in 1967 by the establishment and opening of the James Madison College and the Lyman J. Briggs College. James Madison offers a curriculum for the study of public policy problems within the framework of the social sciences and related disciplines. Lyman Briggs makes available a liberal curriculum for students especially interested in science and mathematics.

Today, nearly 40,000 students attend the University at East Lansing. About 80 percent are from Michigan, representing every section of the state. Students also come from every state in the nation and 81 foreign countries.

Looking to the future, Michigan State University is preparing to meet the challenge of increasingly larger enrollments by revising curriculums and developing new teaching techniques through its Educational Development Project.

In the land-grant tradition it pioneered, Michigan State University is concerned with research and service as well as teaching.

All colleges and the Agricultural Experiment Station are engaged in a wide range of research. Some 2,100 individual projects are in progress. The University's research tools include the Control Data 3600 and 6500 Computers and a 50-million-volt cyclotron. Modern facilities include the following new buildings: Chemistry, biochemistry, psychology research, veterinary medicine, plant science research, and natural resources.

Through an agreement with the Atomic Energy Commission, MSU will become a national center for basic research on plants and their reactions to radiation. Involved is construction of a $2 million building, a staff of approximately 90 persons and an annual budget of approximately $1 million when the program is fully underway.

Benefits of the University are brought to every county in Michigan by the Cooperative Extension Service and the Continuing Education Service. Their programs, on and off campus, provide a wide range of technical information and formal course work for hundreds of thousands of Michigan citizens. The Kellogg Center for Continuing Education, one of the finest conference centers in the nation, annually hosts nearly 50,000 adults who come to the campus for some 600 conferences and other educational meetings.

Michigan State University's land-grant concept of service is international. Supported by grants from the federal government and private foundations, Michigan State University maintains research and technical assistance projects in Asia, Africa and Latin America. International projects have given many faculty members overseas experience, adding a new dimension to their teaching.

With more than a century of educational achievement behind it, Michigan State University continues to apply its academic and physical resources to the problems of today and the challenges of the future.

The flags at the rear of the stage are those of the United Nations from which students are attending Michigan State University. They are displayed in the English alphabetical order of the countries represented. The United Nations Flag itself is displayed in the center. Not included in this list are the U. HONORARY DEGREES

DAVID BLACKWELL

The quality of your research in mathematics, probability, and statistics has earned for you the highest accolades of the scientific community, including election to the National Academy of Sciences. Concomitant with your interest in original research, spanning a period of twenty-eight years, has been your commitment to the classroom; an unusual number of your former students already have become outstanding teachers in this country and abroad. This is eloquent tribute to the mark you set for and made on them. You have given deeply of yourself as an educational administrator, as department chairman, as assistant dean and as a member of important and sensitive university committees charged with developing humane and intelligent order out of contemporary academic confusions. Moreover, you have contributed unstintingly of your talent and time to your profession as an editor; and to civic, state, and national governmental agencies as an expert consultant. Because of your unusual accomplishments in so many areas which your abilities, interests and vision bind together, Michigan State University is pleased to grant to you the degree of Doctor of Science.

KENNETH EWART BOULDING

Your record as a teacher and scholar, culminating in your election as President of the American Economic Association, has brought you a distinguished reputation as one of the most insightful economic philosophers of our day. Your international background, the scope of your interests, the seriousness of your concern have caused you to enlist your understanding, your wisdom, your clarity in the service of the classroom and of all mankind, as you have directed your attention to central problems which, although concerned with economics, transcend any narrow technical expertise. Addressing your talent and your efforts to the resolution of conflicts on all levels, through a flow of provocative and illuminating studies, you have added to man's understanding of what is involved in his attempt to live as a social being. In recognition of your outstanding contributions to your fellow man as a scholar, as a writer, as an educator, as a humanist, Michigan State University is pleased to grant to you the degree of Doctor of Laws.

NORMAN COUSINS

In a country much given to abstract phrases like "peace with justice," "democracy in education," and "freedom for all," you have given them definition by the clarity of your thinking, the vigor of your expression, by the day-to-day range and depth of your activities. As lecturer and educator in America, Asia and Europe, as editor, most importantly of the Saturday Review, as President of the World Federalists, as author of a dozen important books, you answer the title of one of them: Who Speaks for Man? You do, Norman Cousins, and, in honoring you today, we honor ourselves. We honor a precious vision of humanity that must become a reality if man is to survive. Because of your labor and your vision, Michigan State University is proud to confer upon you the degree of Doctor of Letters.

HONORARY DEGREES

CALVIN HASTINGS PLIMPTON

In your varied career as a physician, educator and administrator, you have made a distinguished contribution to the physical and cultural well-being of your fellow men, both in this country and abroad. Beyond this exemplary service and achievement, you have continued to assume ever widening and deepening obligations of responsible citizenship. You have called on our educational institutions and the nation at large to reject simplistic interpretations, to see the true sources of present unrest: our inadequate attention to national problems and the destructive disparity between the American dream and the American reality. In considered yet insistent tones you have maintained the possibility of and the necessity for reasoned change consonant with both the American tradition and the contemporary imperatives. For your realistically grounded understanding, for your responsible leadership, for your articulate formulation of the real issues which confront our universities and our society at this critical moment, Michigan State University grants to you the degree of Doctor of Letters.

LESLIE WRIGHT SCOTT

Since your graduation from Michigan State University some three decades ago, you have played an important and varied role in the life of your alma mater. As Director of the School of Hotel, Restaurant and General Institutional Management and of Continuing Education, you were instrumental in the successful growth of those programs. Transferring your attention to business, you have since gained national recognition as an innovative executive, bringing credit to yourself and to the University where you had learned and taught. As you have pursued two distinguished careers in education and business, you have yet found the time, the energy and the commitment to render additional service to this University through your efforts in the Alumni Association from its inception to the present time. In recognition of your outstanding contributions to this University, to education and to the economic life of this country, Michigan State University is pleased to grant to you the degree of Doctor of Laws.
